Things to Do:

Barter Theatre, located in the heart of Abingdon, VA., was founded in 1933 and offers professional, repertory theatre with 17-19 productions per year. Recognized as the premiere theatre in the region, it launched the careers of such notable actors as Gregory Peck, Patricia Neal and Ernest Borgnine. Enjoy classics, comedies, dramas and Broadway musicals.

Star Museum, located at 170 E. Main Street in Abingdon, VA., is a specialty museum loaded with memorabilia of Hollywood icons from past to present. It is open by appointments only. Owner Robert Weisfield knows plenty of local folklore and history.

Fields-Penn 1860 House Museum is located on Main Street. You take a self-guided tour of this well maintained historic home, but there is a very knowledgeable volunteer on site to answer questions.

William King Museum: Center for Art and Cultural Heritage is a non-profit regional art museum and arts education center housed in a historic 1913 former school. It is the only facility of its kind and Virginia's only nationally accredited museum west of Roanoke.

White's Mill is a self-guided tour through all four floors of the historic old mill. The inner workings of the mill are exposed and labeled for simple education in the milling process.

The Arts Depot is a nice collection of artists' studios, where you can visit their work area as well as buy the work they have for sale. The studios are quaint and full of art.

Virginia Creeper Trail, which is part of the rails to trails conversion project, is a nature hiking/biking trail where the scenery changes each season. Once a footpath of Native Americans and a road west for early pioneers, including Daniel Boone, the trail was in more modern times a mountain railroad between Abingdon and the VA-NC border.

Airports:

Tri-Cities Regional Airport located in Blountville, TN. is approximately a 35-minute drive from Abingdon. Car rentals, taxi and limousine service are available at the airport.

Roanoke Municipal Airport is 118 miles from Abingdon.
